Hunt creates multiple access points to preserved open space and the country’s largest urban state park.

- New trailhead connectivity to miles of trails in Franklin Mountain State Park
- Total of 11 direct access trailheads
- Wayfinding and trailhead signage improvements
- Shade structures and picnic areas
- Bike “pump track” with reconstruction of open space and natural washes
- Large new play area
- Native landscaping
- Trailhead parking

We’re making it even easier for all El Pasoans to enjoy the outdoors.

At Hunt, we love calling El Paso home. We especially appreciate the outdoor spaces we can all enjoy. Today, we’re happy to announce we’re making those existing spaces even more accessible to more people, and adding entirely new opportunities to get out and experience El Paso’s natural beauty.

First, we’re building new trailheads in our communities. These trailheads will feature parking, cooling shade structures, and refreshing water for El Paso’s active people and their pets. We’re also expanding access to many of the existing regional, local and neighborhood trails – and blazing new ones – making it easier for all of us to access Franklin Mountain State Park.

CIMARRON CANYON PARK
Coming Soon

After all, as the country’s largest urban state park, it’s a place we should all get to experience as much as possible. As part of the expansion, we will be adding wayfinding and trailhead signage improvements throughout the trail system.

We’re building an entirely new, three-acre park. Cimarron Canyon Park will be a new-concept green space unlike anything El Paso has seen before, with features designed for every type of visitor – from active hikers to those who simply want to get some fresh air. It will even include a bike pump track – designed to give young cyclists the chance to have some fun and up their skills. Enjoy relaxing picnic areas, shade structures, play and lawn areas, native landscaping and broad sidewalks with access to adjacent urban trails.

Franklin Hills

Franklin Hills will feature 3 new trailheads, which means the community will have 6 trailheads with direct access to Franklin Mountain State Park. We invite all of our neighbors to use the trailheads. While they will be especially convenient to Franklin Hills residents, they are designed for, and open to, everyone.
